Terms & Definitions

* Accordion-- Specialized content area that opens to display information in expand/contractible rows. This feature is available in the standard and landing page templates; please see applicable slides in the wireframes for examples.
* Bucket-- Specialized content area to display information in boxes with headings and specifically sized photos. This feature is available in the standard and landing page templates; please see applicable slides in the wireframes for examples.
* Business Requirements– This document defines the high-level needs and features of the project by focusing on the capabilities needed by the Stakeholders of the project and the Target Users.
* CMS / Content Management System– CMS is a term for software that allows you to maintain the content of your site without affecting the graphical templates and/or having to know HTML code. There are many packages in this space, in a wide range of price points, but Beacon has selected "Cascade Server" for its content management system and is a close partner with its developer– Hannon Hill. Several members of Beacon's staff work closely with Hannon Hill on product reviews, suggestions and enhancements and Justin Klingman speaks annually at their user conference.
* Content-- All text, images, tables, photos, etc. that make up the web site, but not the layout or graphical elements such as the background or navigation links.
* Content Matrix– This document itemizes every page in the new site and its relationship to other pages in the navigational structure as well as the source of the content to populate the new page (usually either a URL of the current website page OR a Word document containing rewritten content).
* Features– Specific functionality available within one or more templates. For example, the ability to display an interactive Google Map is a "feature" available in the standard and landing page templates.
* Graphical Design– Graphics and color scheme that make up the visual appearance of the website. The new graphical design of the Grossmont and Cuyamaca websites was approved before Beacon Technologies was involved in the project and was used as the basis for the development of the mini sites.
* iFrame-- An HTML page or application embedded within the content area of the new website design. Allows content editors to display information or data housed outside of Cascade within the website. However, the source page should not contain any navigational or
* Layout / Page Layout– The way the different elements on the page are arranged, including header, footer, content areas, navigation, etc.
* Responsive Design– Used to address the ever-changing landscape of devices, browsers, screen sizes and orientations, responsive design incorporates flexible, fluid and adaptive page layouts that adapt to almost any screen size.
* Site Hierarchy– A design document representing a general organizational structure of the top two or three tiers of the site in a hierarchical / flow-chart type format.
* Spectate– Software that integrates with Cascade Server that allows content editors to create web-based forms to be displayed on their web pages.
* Template– A unique page layout available within Cascade Server. A template is the basic shell with some standard and optional features for a page. It is used to create specific pages while maintaining a consistent "look" across the internal pages of the site. Examples of anticipated templates for the Grossmont and Cuyamaca sites are the following (which will be documented in the forthcoming slides of the wireframes document): Homepage, Landing Page, Standard Page, Faculty, Newsletter, Calendar, News, Committees, Photo Gallery, Page Not Found, Search Results.
* UAT (User Acceptance Testing)– Also known as "end user testing," this is the phase of the project where the client tests the site in a "real world" environment. We have specially designated test servers at Beacon that allow you to view the site exactly as it will appear in Production, without opening it up to the public yet. Depending on the size of the project, we try to reserve at least a week (and usually two or more!) for this process, to make sure that we have met your expectations for the project.
* Widget—A reusable feature of a template that can be created in a shared location and used on more than one page. For example, an administrator could create a video widget (including the text title, thumbnail image and Youtube video id of a specific video) in a folder and multiple website editors could select that widget from a list to display it on their page as well, without having to provide all the previously mentioned text, image and video id information.
* Wireframes— Also known as "conceptual page layouts," this is a visual representation the skeletal framework of key elements of the website, including arrangement of the website content, navigational systems, header, footer, etc.

History of the College

Following several years of study involving both lay and educational groups, the voters of the area approved the formation of the Grossmont Junior College District in an election held November 8, 1960. The first official organizational meeting of the Grossmont Junior College Governing Board was held July 1, 1961. The first college classes convened September 11, 1961 on the Monte Vista High School campus in Spring Valley with an opening enrollment of 1,538.

Bond elections to provide funds for the construction of a college campus were held October 10, 1961 and June 5, 1962. Although there was a healthy majority in favor of the bonds, neither election could secure the two-thirds majority needed for passage. On September 18, 1962, 73 percent of the voters approved a $7.5 million bond issue. With the passage of the bond election, the Governing Board moved to purchase a 135-acre site located on a scenic mesa in the Fletcher Hills area adjacent to the cities of El Cajon and La Mesa. Ground was broken for the new campus in December, 1963. Even before construction was completed, the administrative offices were moved to the new campus and classes were officially opened on September 14, 1964. On December 12 of that year, the campus was officially dedicated

The first increment of the campus was planned to accommodate an enrollment of 2,500 day-time students, and the completed campus was expected to hold 4,800 students. On October 18, 1965, a second bond election for $3.5 million was passed by the voters in the area. Passage of this bond issue made it possible to complete the master plan. The new facilities were completed by September 25, 1967. Since that time, student enrollment has increased to a peak of over 16,000.

In the fall of 1978 Cuyamaca College opened. This is the second community college in the Grossmont-Cuyamaca Community College District. Cuyamaca College is located on a 165-acre site in the foothills, south of El Cajon, on Jamacha Boulevard. Because of state legislation in 1970, which changed the term "Junior College" in California codes to that of "Community College," the College became officially known as Grossmont Community College on January 6, 1971, when the Board of Education of the County of San Diego approved a petition from the Grossmont Junior College District requesting this change. On March 5, 1985, the Governing Board officially changed the name of the District to the Grossmont-Cuyamaca Community College District, thereby incorporating the name of our second campus in the title

Main Title

There are many variations of passages of Lorem Ipsum available, but the majority have suffered alteration in some form, by injected humour, or randomised words which don't look even slightly believable. If you are going to use a passage of Lorem Ipsum, you need to be sure there isn't anything embarrassing hidden in the middle of text. All the Lorem Ipsum generators on the Internet tend to repeat predefined chunks as necessary, making this the first true generator on the Internet. It uses a dictionary of over 200 Latin words, combined with a handful of model sentence structures, to generate Lorem Ipsum which look reasonable. The generated Lorem Ipsum is therefore always free from repetition, injected humour, or characteristic words
